

Course Objectives

This course is designed to introduce the novice to the practice of reading music and its application to the acoustic guitar. Over the next 10 weeks the class will begin with an introduction to a basic principle about playing the guitar, such as playing and naming the open strings, and then moving onto playing and naming the fretted notes on one string then two, etc.. We will move very quickly through the course work and it is imperative that you keep up on the material introduced in class by practicing it at home. Music is a language and like all languages it is learned more by constant repetition. The goal of this course is to have the student be able to play a basic blues scale and accompaniment, read in first position, play a major scale and learn to play with others.

Course Materials

The only materials needed for this course will be posted on your MyBC webspace. If you are not familiar with this and my explanation in class does not clear up any questions please come talk with me.

Grading

You will be graded on class room participation 15%, success in performing the assignments in class 25%, and a midterm and a final over the material 60%. It is the philosophy of the instructor of this class that music is not complete until it has been given away. Thus you will be giving a performance as a part of your midterm and final. The midterm will be evaluated according to your progress in the class from the first day to the rehearsals that we have in class, along with the evidence of your improvement in your duo rehearsals that happen before your coaching given before your midterm. Please read the notes given for midterm criteria!

Instructor's Expectation

My expectations are simple in that I expect you to arrive to class on time and with the assigned reading done and ready to discuss a detail here or there in the reading. It is hard to have truly detailed discussions in a room of 40 students, however I will pose questions about the themes and some of the specifics of the reading or notes from the previous days lecture and hope to have the students demonstrate a clear understanding of the material as we progress through the course. It should go without saying, but I will say in bold print; That I expect the students to understand that taking care of bodily functions need to be done before or after the mere 50 minutes we have to work on this truly fun subject of music. You need to turn off your cell phones when in class too.

Affirmation of Inclusion

Bellevue College is committed to maintaining an environment in which every member of the campus community feels welcome to participate in the life of the college, free from harassment and discrimination.

We value our different backgrounds at Bellevue College, and students, faculty, staff members, and administrators are to treat one another with dignity and respect.

Division Statements

A common, campus-wide minimum standard regarding student cheating, stealing, and plagiarizing provides enough autonomy for instructors and programs to set their own standards. It is the instructor's responsibility to clearly articulate to the students what is considered appropriate and inappropriate behavior in the classroom and what action will be taken in the case of inappropriate classroom behavior. It is recommended that this be done through the course syllabus.

Student Code

“Cheating, stealing and plagiarizing (using the ideas or words of another as one’s own without crediting the source) and inappropriate/ disruptive classroom behavior are violations of the Student Code of Conduct at Bellevue College.

Examples of unacceptable behavior include, but are not limited to: talking out of turn, arriving late or leaving early without a valid reason, allowing cell phones/pagers to ring, and inappropriate behavior toward the instructor or classmates. The instructor can refer any violation of the Student Code of Conduct to the Vice President of Student Services for possible probation or suspension from Bellevue College. Specific student rights, responsibilities and appeal procedures are listed in the Student Code of Conduct, available in the office of the Vice President of Student Services.” The Student Code, Policy
