A SAFE PLACE TO NEST

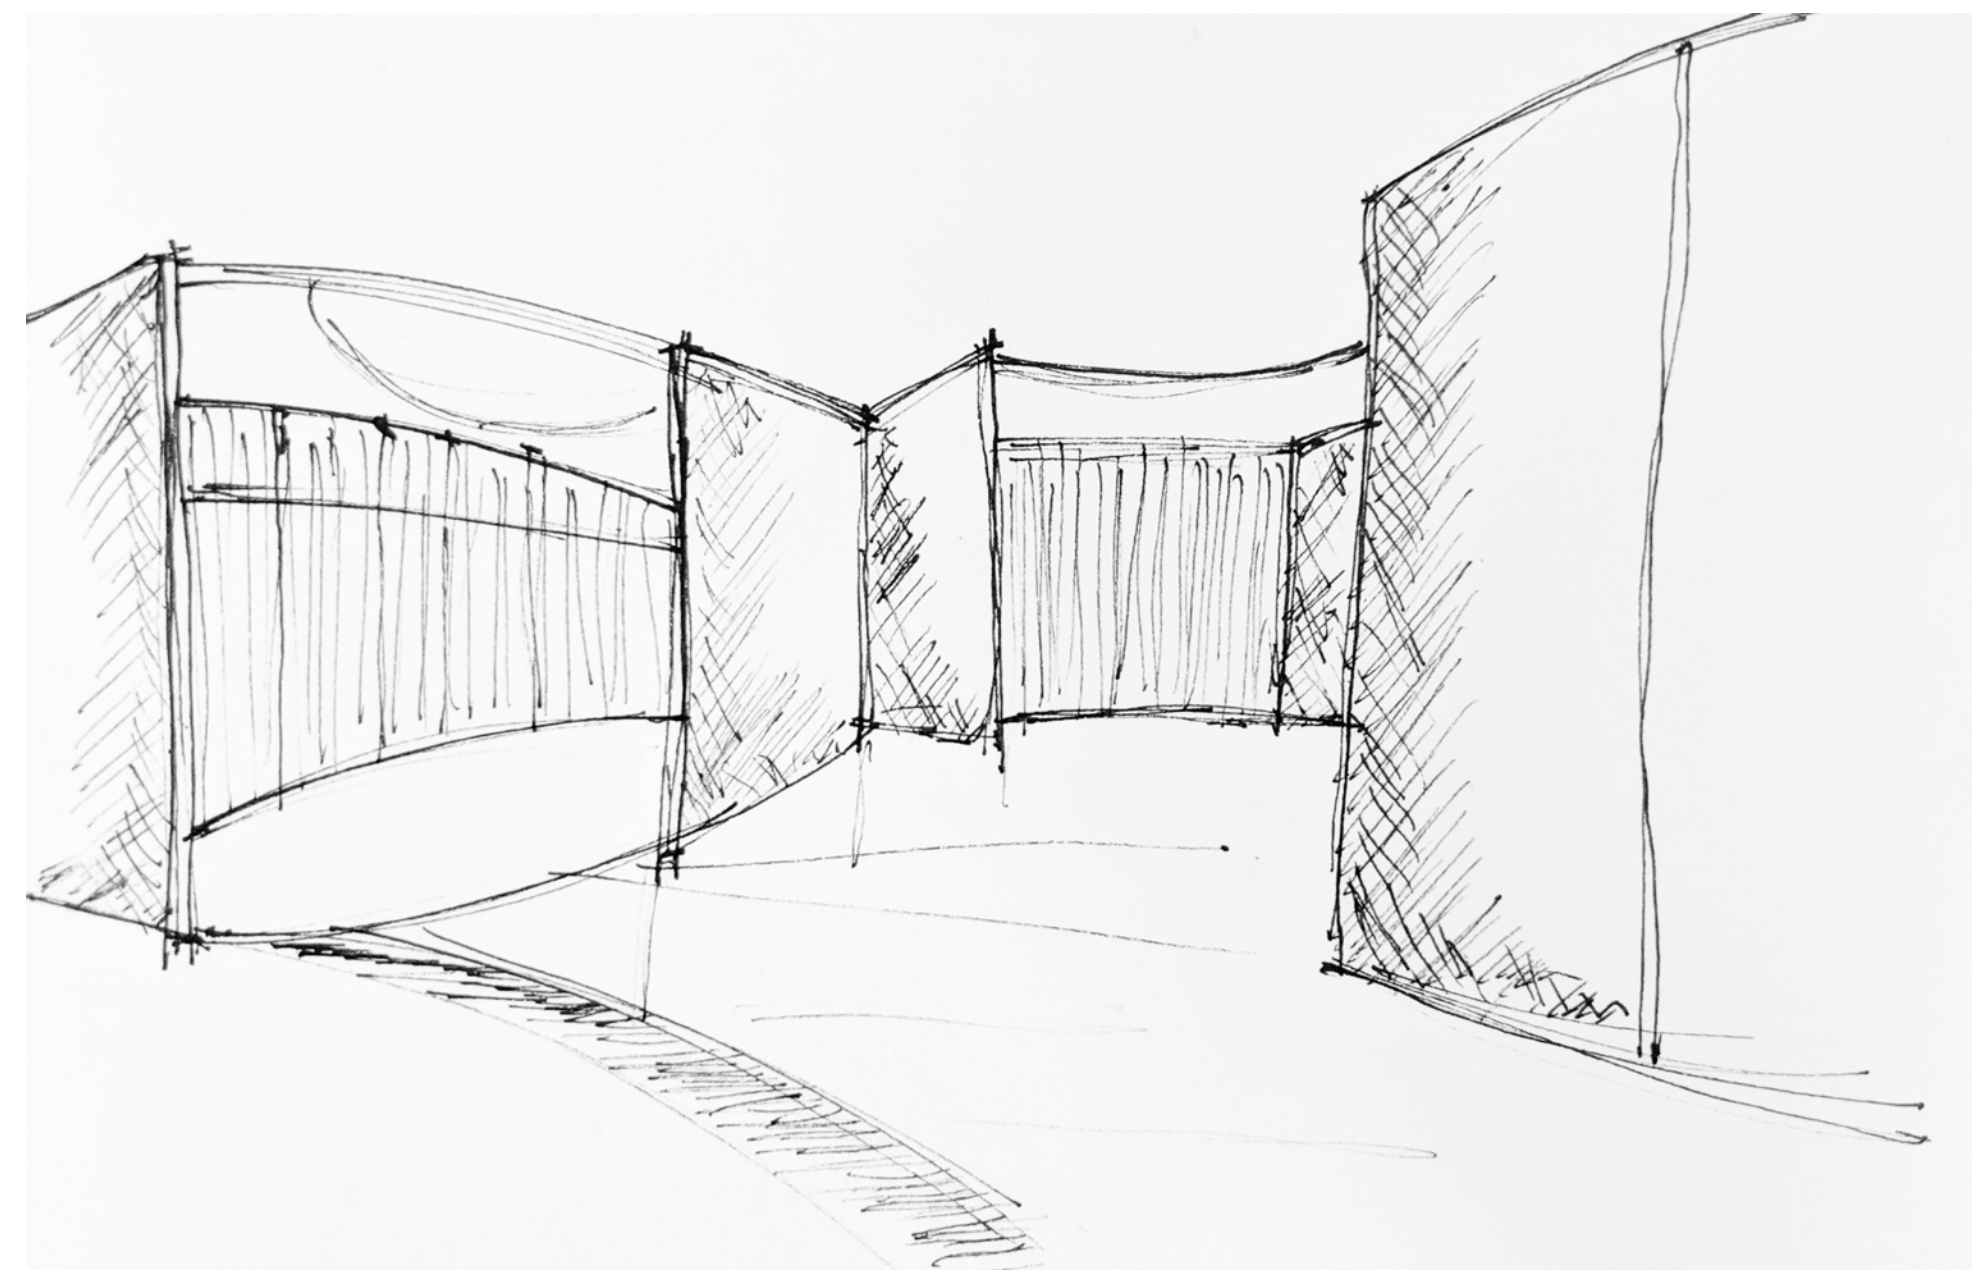

Humans are better able to communicate freely in a space that feels safe. This project explores how physical space can foster a secure environment through color, texture, and varying levels of privacy in order to encourage community and collaboration that promotes social justice.

Playful Colorful Layered Intimate Flexible

Disability Justice

In order to consider and accommodate both visible and invisible disabilities, my design strives to create an intuitive layout with a comfortable intimacy gradient to welcome a variety of users. My design incorporates color and texture contrast and offers a combination of open space and seating alcoves to ensure that as many users as possible can comfortably use the space.
