ABOUT BELLEVUE

Bellevue is a unique city that is located near Seattle in western Washington State in the U.S. Pacific Northwest. The city is in the Eastside region of King County, across Lake Washington from Seattle. Bellevue is surrounded by vast wilderness areas, including the rugged Cascade Mountains to its east and the Olympic mountains further to the west, which helps explain the city's name, a derivation of a French term for "beautiful view". As Seattle's largest suburb, Bellevue has variously been characterized as an edge city, a boom burb, or satellite city.

Bellevue is home to several high-tech companies and is adjacent to Redmond, home of software giant Microsoft Corporation. While business booms downtown, much of Bellevue retains a small-town feel, with thriving, woodsy neighborhoods and a vast network of green spaces and recreational facilities that keep people calling the place "a city in a park."

Surrounded by magnificent natural beauty and outdoor spaces, this one-of-a-kind place offers the ultimate in shopping, dining and cultural attractions, all within easy strolling distance of popular hotels. Vibrant, modern and growing, Bellevue is the gateway to the entire Puget Sound region. Within minutes you can explore Seattle's culture and history, visit Kirkland's waterfront parks and galleries, or tour Woodinville's Wine Country, home to over 100 tasting rooms and some of the world's best wines. You can even quench your taste for adventure with a day-trip to nearby mountains for hiking, biking, or skiing.

The city's schools are consistently rated among the best in the country. Bellevue is proud of its education system, as its schools rank among some of the best in the U.S. It is approximately 40 percent for King County (which includes both Bellevue and Seattle) as a whole and about 25 percent for the U.S. as a whole.
