WELCOME TO AMERICAN LIFE AND CULTURE

This course provides a view of American culture from the broad lens of anthropology. Students will be exposed to theoretical approaches and concepts that will enhance their understanding of American culture from a number of perspectives. We will begin by looking at what exactly is American culture? It is generally quite difficult to critically examine that which is closest to us, but in this class that is exactly what we intend to do. In other words, our goal is to attempt to view American culture from an etic (or outsider's perspective) to gain insight into aspects of life we may take for granted as insiders or participants within that culture. We will explore intersections of American society like family, gender, and ethnicity, and this will enhance our understanding of the interactions and norms that structure our social world. In particular we will examine how these variables are constructed within the realm of American popular culture (e.g. movies, television and sports) and how this is relevant to our everyday lives.

Course Objectives and Outcomes

Anthropology 180 is a 5-credit course that introduces you to the discipline of anthropology as a way to provide insights into American culture. You are exposed to the basic underlying principles, theories, and methods of anthropology through lectures, textbook readings, articles, discussions, and visual materials. The following are the outcomes of this course

- Acquire an understanding of a variety of cultural anthropological methods (e.g. semi-structured interviews, participant observation)
- Acquire an understanding of key principles such as ethnocentrism, comparative methods and holism
- Analyze current theoretical/anthropological views of social variables (such as ethnicity, language and gender)
- Recognize how social variables are constructed, represented and influenced in American popular culture
- Appreciate insights about American culture from a foreign perspective of the US

Outcomes will be assessed through class activities, exams, online discussions and a final project.

General Education Ratings for Anth 180: American Life and Culture

This course fulfills the General Education requirement of "Connections".

Books and Materials Required

- TWO REQUIRED TEXTBOOKS
- 1) DeVita, Philip R., editor, 2002. Distant Mirrors. America as a Foreign Culture. Wadsworth Thomson Learning.
- 2) Boulanger, Claire L., editor, 2008. Reflecting on America. Anthropological Views of U.S. Culture. Pearson Publishing.

- 3) Additional articles will be assigned throughout the quarter and posted online, they are mandatory.

Course Requirements: This is an intensive course. Be prepared to do all readings!

The Syllabus: You are required to review this entire syllabus and the Procedures and Guidelines of the Social Science Division. Enrollment in the course constitutes an agreement to abide by the policies set forth in these items. You will be required to complete the Course Agreement/Syllabus Quiz as soon as possible.

Attendance: Attendance is required for success in the class. You are expected to be here for every class. You must be present to earn participation points and to participate in in class activities. Regular attendance throughout the quarter is expected for full points. If you are absent for any class, it is your responsibility to communicate with your instructor and to obtain class material for that day. There are in class activities that cannot be made up, therefore you need to be there.

Active Participation: Active Participation will be expected of each of you. You should read all material for each class ahead of time in preparation for constructive participation. Participation does not just mean speaking, it means listening to others views and being respectful. Participation figures importantly in borderline final grades. I strongly feel that students should take responsibility for their own learning. Therefore, at the end of the quarter there will be a self-evaluation of what you think your level of participation was for this class. You will assign yourself a number out of 10. Although you are scoring yourself, as the instructor I will have the final say in assuring that both of our perceptions are in line.

In Class Activities and Discussions: To enhance your learning, the class will participate in discussions. These will vary in format; some will require you to read a designated article (available on MyBC) before class and others will require your response to questions about an in-class film, while others may simply be an in class activity. You are expected to provide thoughtful, respectful comments that are based on your educated opinion from course materials. There are no make-ups for these aspects of class. You MUST be present to do in class activities; therefore you CANNOT make them up! In class activities work with material we are covering to help enhance understanding. They are graded for effort, understanding of material and evidence of critical thinking.

Midterm and Final Exams: A major part of your course grade will be derived from two exams. Each exam has 50 questions. Please show up prepared and on time. You must bring a pencil and a scantron. Questions are derived from class lectures, discussions, films, assigned readings, exercises, handouts and any other instructional material presented in class. Cheating and plagiarism will not be tolerated (see below). Test conduct will comply with the College policy for academic honesty.

Project Proposal: You will be required to come up with an original ethnographic project for this class. This is the foundation for your final project. You will receive feedback on your proposal before you begin the fieldwork for your project. Specific instructions will be given in class.

Final Project: You will be required to come with an original project for this class. This can be in the form of an interview or ethnography, or other idea if given prior permission from the instructor. This project has a research component and fieldwork component. It is a time intensive endeavor so please start early. Specific instructions will be given in class. You MUST attend class the day the project is due to hand in your project in person.

A Note About Course Content

Since anthropologists examine just about every aspect of the social world, we talk about provocative material. Please be advised that we will likely explore controversial topics, they will always be framed within an academic context. Please be respectful in your comments and questions but also keep an open mind. When we find ourselves in a space outside of our comfort zone, it provides a great example of our own cultural constructs and is a powerful opportunity for learning. If you have any questions or concerns about content or climate, come and speak with me in private or send me an email.

Non-scheduled class cancelations:

The possibility is always there that class will be cancelled unexpectedly. In the case that class is cancelled, I will post information on MyBC. This will include lecture material, assignments and handouts. It is your responsibility to check this in a timely manner and before the next class session

Bellevue College E-mail and access to MyBC

- You will need access to MYBC and your BC email. Your student network account can be used to access your student e-mail, log in to computers in labs and classrooms, connect to the BC wireless network and log in to MyBC.
- Class materials, and important updates will be posted on MyBC.

IMPORTANT CLASS POLICIES

Make-up tests (including the final) are only offered due to extenuating circumstances at the discretion of the instructor and must be arranged at least one week before the originally scheduled test date. In the case of a conflicting final exam schedule, you must notify your instructor at least 2 weeks prior to the exam.

If you are requesting a make-up test because you know in advance that you will have to be absent, you must give a legitimate reason. You will need to e-mail ahead of time explaining why you need to miss the assessment, and you will be required to provide appropriate documentation to explain your absence. Vacation, attendance at social activities, sleeping in, work, picking up someone from the airport, forgetting etc. are not valid excuses for missing exams and you will not be able to make up exams for these reasons. Consideration for make-up exams is provided ONLY if you have contacted me BEFORE your absence and IF you have provided appropriate documentation. If you are ill on the day of a test you must notify your instructor immediately and meet with instructor upon your return to discuss the possibility of a make-up.

Late work: DON'T HAND IN WORK LATE. It is unfair to other students who hand in work on time. However, I know that life can present unexpected challenges, and I am willing to take these into account in accepting late work. If you feel that you have an exceptionally valid reason for needing to submit work late, you may write an email requesting that I make an exception. You should always do this as soon as possible, normally BEFORE the due date. In your email you should state why your assignment is/will be late, and provide evidence you can to support your claim. I will consider these requests on a case by case basis. Vacations are not a valid excuse. If you will be out of town on due dates, you should complete the work before you leave. If you do not have a valid excuse, as outlined above, I may accept late work for up to two days following the deadline, deducted at 25% off per day late. Any work handed in later than two days past deadlines will not be accepted.

Classroom Learning Atmosphere: General Class Conduct and Discussions

It is important to make sure that the classroom environment is as conducive to scholarship as possible, and also a safe environment for all students. You are encouraged to participate in discussions of the theories and concepts that will be presented to the class, as long as they pertain to class material. Class discussions and group work, while enriching, can also be challenging. This is a college level class. I expect a mature level of behavior and mutual respect. You may find that your fellow students hold beliefs and opinions that conflict with your own. This is an opportunity to exercise your listening skills, perfect your critical reasoning skills, and learn to examine claims based on supporting evidence. It is imperative that this learning environment be safe and open for all students regardless of age, sexual orientation, race, ethnicity, religion, gender, disability, or perspective. Students who do not adhere to this code of conduct will be asked to leave the class. This behavior will be reported to the Dean of Student Services. Discussion guidelines:

1. We are NOT here to persuade others to our point of view; rather to examine the merits of each position, based on evidence.
2. We can respect the person even if we don't share his/her opinions.
3. We will give each participant his/her time to express their views without interruption, argumentation, or disrespectful gestures, laughter, or facial expressions, etc.
4. We will question the evidence or the claim; not the person.
5. We will remain open to corrective feedback as to our views and/or the impact of our communication style.
6. We will remain aware of the time and seek to not dominate the discussion. (No more than two comments/questions before yielding the time to others.)
7. We will avoid phrases such as: "People like that..." "That's a stupid question....idea....etc." "They always..."
8. No one should be understood to be 'representing' the entire racial/ethnic, gender, class, etc. group to which he or she belongs. You speak only for yourself.

Please raise your hand if you would like to speak, and I will recognize you so as to allow everyone in the room to have a chance to speak. Comments made while others are speaking including the instructor as disrespectful and a distraction. They will not be tolerated. Please review BC's policy in the Student Handbook as well as the policies for this class. All infractions of policies will be reported to the Dean of Student Services, with the recommendation that the Dean take further action.

Classroom Learning Atmosphere: Attendance and Punctuality

This class is based on the assumption that you will be attending regularly, participate fully, and support the learning environment for your fellow students. Some form of attendance will be taken every class (handing in a response to a question, an in class activity etc.). If you are absent, you are responsible for obtaining lecture notes from fellow students and to gain information regarding announcements or changes to the schedule that you may have missed. Please be on time for class. Coming in late distracts your peers.

Classroom Learning Atmosphere: Technology in the Classroom

Electronic devices (cell phones, laptops, etc.) are a convenience, not a right. They create a distraction for your fellow students. Cell phones are to be turned OFF while in a classroom. If you have a need to use a laptop computer for note-taking, please see me immediately. Although you may think you are being discreet, instructors know when you are texting.

Classroom Learning Atmosphere: Cheating and Plagiarism

Cheating or plagiarism is legitimate grounds for failing the course and dismissal from class.

Tests:

Cheating behavior on tests includes, but is not limited to, looking at someone else's test, asking another student for answers, assisting another student with cheating, passing notes, writing on the desk, talking during the testing period or otherwise being disruptive, using sources for information, etc.

Written Work:

Preventing Plagiarism: Plagiarism is a form of academic dishonesty occurring when students use information or material from outside sources and do not properly cite those sources. This is grounds for disciplinary action. It is your responsibility to understand plagiarism and its consequences. Plagiarism occurs if:

- a. You do not cite quotations and/or attribute borrowed ideas.
- b. You fail to enclose borrowed language in quotation marks.
- c. You do not write summaries and paraphrases in his/her own words and/or doesn't document his/her source.
- d. You turn in work created by another person.
- e. You submit or use your own prior work for a current or past course, or work from one current course in another course without express permission from your instructors. This may also be considered academic dishonesty.
- f. Consequences: If it is determined that you have plagiarized or engaged in other forms of academic dishonesty, you will likely fail the assignment and possibly the course, despite points earned through other work. Acts of academic dishonesty are reviewed for disciplinary action.

For all of your written work: Submit proofread work only. If you need help with your writing, please make use of the following student support services at the Academic Success/Tutoring Center or Writing Lab.

Classroom Learning Atmosphere: Quiz-Taking and Testing Expectations

Once the testing period has begun, you may not converse with your fellow students. Cheating and plagiarism will not be tolerated, per the regulations of this syllabus and the Social Science Division. All tests are closed book and closed notes. You may not use any sources when taking a test, including pocket dictionaries or electronic devices.
