Course Description: Criminal Justice/Philosophy 248 for this quarter will be primarily concerned with the search for an ethical foundation upon which the American system of Criminal Justice operates. During the course of this inquiry we will examine numerous societal issues which directly concern the criminal justice practitioner and the application of discretionary powers.

This course will also expose you to several analytic frameworks from which the American system of justice and the art of policing in particular, may be studied. Some of these views may not fit your current understanding of the way the system functions.
However, it is critical that you at least understand and become familiar with conflicting and/or divergent perspectives regarding this subject.

Course Objectives: The objective of this course is to conduct an analysis of the criminal justice system and to stimulate your critical thinking concerning the hidden and visible dilemmas facing the police practitioner’s occupational culture. Consideration of the moral quality of justice administration alters our perspective of that system which so heavily influences the overall health and well-being of its practitioners and their clientele.

Key points which will be addressed in this class are as follows:

After completing this class, students should be able to:

- Identify and explain major moral theories.
- Explain the concepts of morality, justice and duty and how these are inter-related.
- Analyze the various ethical dilemmas that confront Criminal Justice practitioners.
- Discuss the relationship between police discretion, law-enforcement decision-making and morality.
- Evaluate the various models of the Criminal Justice process in terms of consequentialist and deontological ethical theories.
- Do self-analyses based on personal profiles to determine suitability as a police officer.
- Practice decision-making in situations that challenge their personal and professional values.
- Suggest ways for individuals interacting with the criminal justice system to manage occupational, often life-shattering situations, in a morally acceptable, legally defensible format.

Course Requirements: All students are expected to read the required chapters of the textbook as outlined in the schedule section of this syllabus and in as directed in class. Students are also expected to attend the classroom regularly, complete assignments on time, take notes, ask questions, and participate in class discussions.

Make-up Policy: Any make-up assignments or exams are allowed only at the discretion of the instructor and immediate notification from the student is imperative. Excused absences: death of immediate family member (death notification needed), medical emergency (ER discharge papers required) or other emergency with documentation (Dr. note). Any excused absence (with documentation) will be allowed to take the make-up the assignment and/or exam without point penalty. Any un-excused or undocumented missing assignment and/or exam will NOT be allowed to make-up. Since we only meet three times a week you have plenty of time to work on the coursework around any emergencies, work obligations, family obligations, vacations, etc.

Behavior expectations: Respect for opinions voiced in the class is essential, and I expect all students to treat each other courteously. Any type of disruptive or discourteous behavior is unacceptable and will not be tolerated. In college classes, and especially in ethics we will have differing points of view...which is good. Most importantly, you have the opportunity to understand differing points of view and how they are arrived at by your classmates. You may not agree with those points of view, and others may not agree with yours. The best learning happens when your views are challenged and you review the facts, your beliefs, and critically think about the situation/dilemma at hand.
I allow laptops in the BACK ROW only this is so that others are not distracted by your screen. If you are found to be checking e-mail, on Facebook, etc. and not taking notes you will lose the privilege of having your laptop in class. Please use your time in class for notes and PowerPoint only.

Food and drink policy: You are welcome to have covered drinks in class. You can eat food in class as long as it does not have an overwhelming smell or have a crinkly bag (i.e. food wrappers, chips, etc. are loud and annoying!). At break time feel free to eat as well.
