ANTH 234

ANTH 234 5 CR

Instructor: Manouchehr Shiva, Ph.D.

E-mail: mshiva@bellevuecollege.edu

Description

This course is:

- a) an introduction to anthropological approaches to studying religion and the religious, as well as,
- b) an introduction to various religions of humankind.

We rely on a Socio-Cultural Anthropological perspective, we also learn about perspectives of other academic fields, particularly Religious Studies, History of Religions, Global Studies and Cultural Studies.

The content of the course will consist of the weaving together of themes growing out of the following three perspectives and the questions they deal with:

- The Historical Perspective: How have religious traditions manifested themselves in world history, particularly in modern world history?
- The Social Scientific Perspective: How are religious beliefs and practices related to their broader social, political and cultural contexts?
- The Contemporary Global-Local Perspective: What are some of the cotemporary global aspects and local practices of world and indigenous religions?

This is an Inter-Active or a Seminar-Like class. Class Participation, Questioning, and Critical Thinking are highly encouraged.

This is also a Research-Oriented class. We practice the process of doing research on religion-related topics.

You are encouraged to take an active part in your learning process. You are asked to join the class prepared, read the assigned material for each unit, work on your unit assignments (postings) and research project, share, give feedback and actively participate in the class's learning process, and critically reflect on what you read, see and hear.

This course is designed to teach students what anthropology offers for a deeper comprehension of our shared human condition. Critical thinking skills are vital not only for a better understanding of this discipline but also importantly for being citizens of an increasingly globalized world.

One of the main goals of this course is to become sensitive to religious/spiritual belief and practice differences, and at the same time become aware of how our own cultural biases can shape our view of the world. The best way to actively combat our own ethnocentrism is to learn about the diversity of human religions/spiritual beliefs and appreciate the diversity of our world.

Readings: All Readings are free online sources. The course is composed of ten units. There are internet sources assigned for each unit with links in each unit's What to Do document.

COURSE ASSIGNMENTS AND MEANS OF ASSESSMENT

Class Discussion Participation and Feedbacks include:

1. Posting a detailed, comprehensive and well cited answers to discussion questions on the discussion board for each unit, and additional well-thought messages (or feedbacks) in reply to other students' answers.

2. Clearly contributing information to further understanding of the concepts involved in the readings.
3. Derive information only from the assigned or other academic sources and properly cite source (author and title) and page.
4. Exhibit a correct and comprehensive understanding of the issues (given that later messages can revise earlier ones).
5. Be courteous and "scientific" in attitude and communication.

The purpose of discussions and feedbacks is to develop a deeper and more complete understanding of specific key concepts and issues in subjects studied. By fully participating in the discussions, you will also be prepared for the questions in the exams.

Research Project

The focus of the research project is an outline of a preliminary study of a specific religion or religious orientation, or an aspect of a specific religion or religious orientation, in a chosen location and chosen historical period.

Students choose the topic or focus of their research project by the second unit of the quarter.

Project topics have to do with subjects and information from our readings, class discussions, and your own research and interest.

Research Project Report— Minimum four pages (double-spaced), excluding your bibliography. The report is a re-writing of your postings about your research topic during the quarter, based on the feedbacks you have received and your own further research.

Grading -- Total of 1000 points

Class Discussion Participation and Feedbacks: 25 points for each unit - total of 250 points - 25% of total grade.

Quizzes: -- 5 quizzes (one quiz per two units) - 50 points each - Total of 250 points - 25% of total grade

Final Exam: 250 points -- 25% of total grade.

Preventing Plagiarism: Plagiarism is a form of academic dishonesty occurring when students use information or material from outside sources and do not properly cite those sources. This is grounds for disciplinary action. It is your responsibility to understand plagiarism and its consequences. Plagiarism occurs if:

- a. You do not cite quotations and/or attribute borrowed ideas.
- b. You fail to enclose borrowed language in quotation marks.
- c. You do not write summaries and paraphrases in his/her own words and/or doesn't document his/her source.
- d. You turn in work created by another person.
- e. You submit or use your own prior work for a current or past course, or work from one current course in another course without express permission from your professors. This may also be considered academic dishonesty.
- f. Consequences: If it is determined that you have plagiarized or engaged in other forms of academic dishonesty, you will likely fail the assignment and possibly the course, despite points earned through other work. Acts of academic dishonesty are reviewed for disciplinary action.

WHAT COURSES IN ANTHROPOLOGY ARE OFFERED AT BC?

There is a general introductory class (Survey of Anthropology) which highlights all four sub-disciplines of anthropology. BC offers in-depth courses in Anthropology which I encourage you to take: archaeology (Great Discoveries in Archaeology; Archaeology; Ancient North America; Incas & Their Ancestors; Aztecs, Mayas, & Their Ancestors), biological anthropology (Biological Anthropology; Bioanthropology with Lab; Cross-cultural Medicine; Forensic Anthropology), cultural anthropology (Food, Drink, & Culture; American Life & Culture; Cultural Anthropology; Sex, Gender, & Culture; Environment & Culture; REEL Culture; Religion & Culture) and linguistics (Language, Culture, & Society). Check BC's Course Catalogue for a full description of each course. We will also be offering several special topics courses spanning the discipline. Topics may include Primatology, Experimental Archaeology, Anthropology of Immigration and Scandinavian Culture. There are no prerequisites for any of these courses and they fulfill degree requirements. Different formats (on campus, on-line, hybrid) are offered. Stop by and visit the Social Science Advisor, Deanne Eschbach, in Room D110, for free professional planning and advising, or contact Anthropology Prof. Tony Tessandori (tony.tessandori@bellevuecollege.edu) to learn more about majoring in anthropology.
