Course Description

Can one person make a difference? What does making a difference look like? Using literature, film, music, and news media to look at past and present social movements, examine what makes us engage in acts of political protest, and critically analyze why some resistance efforts are successful and others are not. We will also critically examine what activism and social change means. How do we make these concepts real to us? What does it mean to be socially active in the 21st century? Also, how does society play a role in our understanding of social activism and social change? How grievances are heard and seen as valid and who are considered troublemakers. It is imperative that we explore through a critical lens the impact that society has on our understanding of activism and social change. Are you ready to be challenged and are you willing to challenge? This is the foundation of the class.

Required Text

Do it Anyway: The New Generation of Activist

What is expected of you?

In this class I am looking for you to challenge yourself and display through assigned writings, opinion papers, quizzes and a group presentation that you're wrestling with the course material. You're ultimate success in this class is contingent on your ability to engage with the material and your classmates.

Assignments

Do something/ 30 points

You will have two opportunities on campus to do something. You will conduct some form of activism on campus. We will discuss this assignment in class.

Weekly Write-Ups/ 20 points

The weekly write ups will be opportunities for you think critically and answer pertinent questions relating to social activism and change. The weekly write-ups will emerge from class discussions, lectures and film. These assignments will be assigned and completed in class.

Social Activism/ 40 Points

You will be required to attend three events on campus that have to deal with the Social Activism and Change. You will attend three events and then provide a one page write up on what you learned from the event.

Group Presentation 60 points

Your group presentation will consist of you choosing a social movement and giving a presentation to the class. Details for this assignment will be given throughout the quarter.

Book Assignment/ 20 pointsParticipation

It is imperative that you recognize that you are required to do more than attend. I expect students to engage and be active in the creation of a strong intellectual community. Being a passive participant will not be tolerated.

Grading Breakdown

Your grade will be determined by how many points you earn divided how many points are possible. Bellevue College utilizes a consistent, published letter grading system to reflect the student's achievements.

Plagiarism

This class is guided by the principal of academic honesty. Be honest with yourself and do not cheat. Instructors have access to commercial software that detects plagiarism. There will be severe penalties for participating in academic dishonesty.

Attendance

Responsibility for class attendance rests with the student. Regular and punctual attendance at all scheduled classes is expected, and the university reserves the right to deal at any time with individual cases of nonattendance. Attendance is expected and continued absences will affect your grade.
