CEO INSIDER – Spotlight Section

AVERY RUNDLE– CEO Club Alumni Representative

I never performed well in school. I found it hard to motivate myself and complete the required work and so I dropped out of high school. After two years I realized what I was doing to my future by neglecting my education and I joined the CEO program. The CEO program has helped me develop better life skills and helped me decide upon the right career path for me. The most important thing I've learned through CEO is to not be ashamed of mistakes I've made in the past. I now think of them as critical to making better decisions in the future. I'm wiser because of them.

I'd like to thank Christy, Kristen, Juan, and Glenn for all the guidance they have given me. In spring quarter I will be graduating, and I hope to transfer to UW to earn a BS in Psychology and then move on to pursue a Masters or Doctorate. Most of the time I'm busy working on-campus or studying, but in my free time, I enjoy board gaming, reading, cooking, and spending time with friends.

PROF SPOTLIGHT CROIX SAFFIN – CES 109 - Women's Studies

I've always struggled with learning information in a classroom setting. The best way to get me to learn something is without a doubt just letting me loose in a library. That being said, I have noticed certain styles of teaching that help me a lot more than others. I love it when I can go into a class and not be entirely sure what we are going to be doing. I love lectures in moderation and having short videos or physical things to look at in class. When I signed up for a Women's Studies class, I was mainly interested in having a class that would be fun and simple. I had tried an online version of this class and it didn't click with me so I wanted to try again, this time on campus. I have to say though, this class has already become my favorite class I've ever had at BC. Croix Saffin is so good at teaching this subject and I learn new things every day. There is such a variety of ways that we learn the information, which is perfect for me because I hate routine. The lectures are engaging and informative and I love that so many people talk in the class and give their opinion on the lessons. We watch videos and read articles, both of which are great ways to get information in different ways.

The entire environment of the classroom is relaxed and welcoming. There isn't so much pressure to memorize information for a test, it feels like a group of friends just talking together and learning naturally through experience. I cannot recommend this class enough, it's such a great way to introduce oneself into the inner workings of our society!
